Training offer: Petzl EXO

escape training

PETZL technical partner

Petzl EXO is a personal escape system that a firefighter or operator carries at all times in a bag attached to the harness. It consists of a self-braking descender designed for 7.5 mm aramid rope, the rope itself and an anchoring element: a hook or a connector. It is used for rapid escape from height, usually through a window, when the way out of the building is cut off, for example by fire.

Training in the use of the Petzl EXO system for firefighters, police officers and special unit operators.

We run the training in two versions: firefighter (self-rescue for firefighters) and tactical (for police officers and counter-terrorism unit operators). You choose the version when you sign up.

Basic option, 1 day
Self-escape through a window.

Extended option, 2 days
Self-escape through a window, plus evacuating a partner or a VIP and escape from a roof.

Equipment: two versions of Petzl EXO
On the course we work with two versions of the Petzl EXO kit:

- EXO AP HOOK with the HOOK anchor hook, for places where it is uncertain whether an anchor point can be found. The hook is placed around a structural element and secured with a hitch or, as a last resort, hooked over a window sill.
- EXO with the EASHOOK OPEN connector, for clipping into an anchor point or a structural element.

Both versions have the same self-braking descender and 7.5 mm aramid rope, resistant to abrasion and high temperatures.
